

November

class newsletter

We can't believe it is already November! Thank you to all of our volunteers for helping, and our room parent Julianne, for planning and helping with a great Halloween party! Thursday we celebrated All Saints Day with an all campus mass.

This week we reviewed concepts we have learned so far this year in math and showed what we knew for report card assessments. In literacy we read all about the different types of jobs people can have and focused on the letter M. We also added the sight word and to our list!

Next week, we will be learning about Election Day and voting on our favorite way to eat corn! ☺

In science we took a break from being weather watchers to do some fun Halloween activities! We learned about why our bodies need bones and what a skeleton does!

I look forwards to meeting with all of you at parent teacher conferences! Please make sure to contact Mrs. Walther in the office to schedule!

Each week we will now focus on one letter throughout the week and begin to incorporate more sight words into our reading vocabulary. Have students search for these words in books at home and work on identifying beginning sounds in words. Other things to practice at home would be rhyming words, writing letters and numbers to 20, and counting the words they hear in a sentence.

November's homework calendar will be in your child's Friday folder!
